The Office of the Governor Shares Plans to Move to the ANZ Building in Fagatogo

The Office of the Governor plans to relocate several of its offices to the ANZ building. This move will continue to foster improved service delivery for the people of American Samoa. Offices scheduled for relocation include the Governor's office, Executive Administration, Legal Counsel, Finance, Personnel, Protocol, and IT.

The strategic decision to relocate to the ANZ building takes into consideration its advantageous position, situated near the Judicial and Legislative branches. Fagatogo has a historic tie for housing all three branches of our government, making this move not only practical but also symbolic of the unity of our governance system. The close proximity of these vital governmental entities will encourage an effective inter-branch coordination, strengthening American Samoa's overall governance framework.

Further details and timelines for the relocation will be available once the plans are finalized.
